CROWDS INCREASING

Large Attendance at the Columbian Exposition.

GOOD WEATHER PREVAILING.

Foreign Exhibitors Protesting Against the One-Judge System and Threaten to Stop Unpacking Their Exhibits—Miss Phoebe Couzins Defeated — Other World's Fair News.

CHICAGO, May 10.—Now that the weather man has let his machine slip a cog or two, either by design or mistake, the attendance at the exposition is beginning to climb up to pleasing figures. All day crowds moved over the elegant pavements watching the gondolas and electric launches glide over the glassy surface of the pretty lagoons, while many thousands more were taking in the sights in the main buildings and on the Midway Plaisance.

COLUMBIAN GUARDS DIRECTING VISITORS.

Miss Phoebe Couzins has been routed, horse, foot and dragoon. By a unanimous vote of the judiciary committee, her application to sit as a member of the national commission has been denied. Commissioner Massey of Delaware, chairman of the judiciary committee, presented the report. The decision of the judiciary committee was based on Section 3 of the act of congress creating the national committee. By this act Mr. Massey held that the membership of the commission was limited to two members from each state and territory and the two alternates. Miss Couzins was not appointed under that act, therefore could not be regarded as a member of the commission and consequently could not be allowed to participate in any of its debates or enjoy any of its prerogatives.

Shortly before this report was presented, Miss Couzins asked that by request a communication of hers be read. This communication was simply a presentation of her case to the national commission. In it she demanded admission to the commission and continuous enrollment. Aside from this the communication contained nothing new.

Foreign exhibitors are loudly protesting against Chairman John Boyd Thatcher's one-judge system for judging exhibits. A number of them, especially those of Austria and Germany, have already sent into Director General Davis a formal protest. The French, Spanish and the Netherlands exhibitors threaten not to unpack any more exhibits unless distinct assurances are given them that jurors and not single judges shall pass on their exhibits.

Director General Davis appears to be helpless in rendering the assistance demanded of him. Nearly every foreign government has sent in a list of eligible names from which a jury of award for their different sections can be selected. These lists have been turned over to Mr. Thatcher by the director general, but Mr. Thatcher has simply pigeon-holed them. The director general asks that immediate attention be paid to these requests, and a letter from him to the national commission will be presented calling attention to the inexcusable delay and asking for immediate relief.

Holders of season passes, who have not yet received their pictures, have been in a state of nervous excitement for the last three days. They have been anxious to know whether the time of the passes without the photographs would be extended.

An agent, representing a famous clown, was on Midway Plaisance looking for a location for one of the most unique schemes to raise in the elusive dollar heard of as yet connected with the exposition. Some months ago an eastern rubber firm was given an order to manufacture a life-sized Jersey cow, mounted over fine steel wire netting. When the artificial cow was finished it was touched up with brush and paint, making it quite genuine and hard to distinguish at a distance from a real cow. Fresh milk is to be pumped from the cow and milked out by the glass at the small price of a nickel a glass. This animal has reached the city, but a site has not yet been located.

The choral building was well filled when Director Thomas waved his baton and the orchestra burst into Bach's "Choral and Fugue" as the opening number of the popular concert. The absence of the open air concerts increased the attendance, and a large audience listened approvingly while the program was executed.

THE VERMONT BUILDING.

The sons of Vermont visited the fair grounds in great numbers and the state building, which is soon to be dedicated, was thrown open to their inspection. The visitors were members of the Vermont Press association, their friends and a number of Chicagoans who claim the Green Mountain state as their home.

Growing Better.

NEW YORK, May 10.—Every indication points to the speedy recovery of Edwin Booth.

HONOLULU ADVICES.

Some Important Information Given Out at the State Department.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Officials of the state department confirm the predictions heretofore made that ex-Representative Blount would be appointed minister resident to the Hawaiian islands. It has been supposed that Minister Stevens would remain in charge of the legation until the 24th of this month, at which time he had announced his intention of sailing for San Francisco. It is now known that that Mr. Stevens has been instructed to forthwith turn over the legation to Commissioner Blount, who has been appointed his successor. There is reason to believe that Mr. Stevens was not allowed to remain in charge of the legation until the 24th inst., because of his activity in behalf of annexation.

It is further stated at the department that Messrs. Bowen and Sewall, who went to Honolulu shortly after Commissioner Blount's arrival, have been active in their efforts to stimulate sentiment on the islands in favor of annexation, and are thought to have created the impression that in so doing they were representing the president. Secretary Gresham has informed Mr. Blount that the president repudiates everything said and done by these gentlemen. Mr. Sewall was an applicant for the position of third assistant secretary of state under the present administration, but failed to secure the appointment.

Minister Stevens, who will sail for the United States on the 24th inst., will be accompanied by Mrs. Stevens. They will bring with them the body of the daughter who was drowned early in this year.

Letters received by naval officers and others in the government service indicate that the provisional government maintains a firm hold. One letter states that the natives' sentiment in favor of annexation is growing.

THE EXTRA SESSION.

Cleveland Urged to Call It Before September to Discuss Money Matters.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—Congressman Bynum of Indiana had an interview with the president on the subject of an extra session to be called earlier than September, the need for legislation on the financial question becoming apparent even to the most callous Democrat, much to the satisfaction of Mr. Cleveland and his cabinet. Mr. Bynum had urged that the date of the assembling of congress be fixed in June, and the proposition is receiving serious consideration. September is one of the most unpleasant months of the year in Washington. The days are stifling hot and humid and there is a general affection of malarial complaints, which drives every one who is able to get away out of the city.

Apart from this is the fact that further drains on the gold reserve are expected, which can not be made up by spasmodic and uncertain contributions from the banks. There is nothing serious in the present condition of affairs, but the uncertainty regarding the future is a cause for apprehension.

The troublesome feature connected with the proposed calling of congress together is the organization of the senate on the silver question, and the certainty of a protracted debate in both branches of congress.

Speaker Crisp called at the White House, and, it is understood, discussed with the president the advisability of an early extra session.

Will Entertain the Duke.

CHICAGO, May 10.—A committee of citizens of Columbus, O., headed by Hon. J. H. Outhwaite, called on the Duke of Veragua at the Auditorium and extended to him an invitation to visit their city, which was named in honor of his great ancestor. The duke said in reply that he appreciated most highly the invitation and would accept it if his route eastward could be arranged to include Columbus. Commander Dickens assured him that the necessary arrangements could be made, upon which the duke said: "In that case I shall be very much pleased to accept your honorable invitation." It is said that the duke will remain two days in Columbus.

The Duke May Be Made Ambassador.

CHICAGO, May 10.—A movement is said to be on foot in the Spanish court, with strong prospects of success, to raise the degree of the Spanish representative at Washington to ambassador plenipotentiary and make the Duke of Veragua the ambassador to Washington. Mr. Muruaga is the present Spanish minister to the United States. The duke could not accept a ministry, but with all dignity and in consideration of his position could become ambassador. The duke is apparently ignorant of this movement at Madrid but his friends do not doubt that he would gladly accept the head of the embassy to Washington if it were offered to him.

Hotel Men at Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, May 10.—The city is honored by the presence of more hotel managers than it has had in eleven years. The annual meeting of the Hotel Men's Mutual Benefit association is in session here, Mr. L. A. Mac'reary of Detroit presiding. After hearing the annual report of the treasurer, Mr. W. L. Jacques of New York was elected president for the ensuing year. After lunch there was a meeting of owners and managers of the hotels, for the purpose of discussing matters of mutual interest, especially the subject of waiters' strikes. The next meeting will be held in Denver the second Tuesday in May, 1894.

Victims of a Gas Explosion.

ANDERSON, Ind., May 10.—Eli Murray and wife, victims of the natural gas explosion last Sunday night, died yesterday at the Emergency hospital.

Indications.

Generally fair weather; slightly warmer on Lake Erie, east and southeast winds.

PROGRESS OF CROPS.

Synopsis of the Weather Bureau's Weekly Bulletin.

ALL THE STATES REPORTING

Everything Retarded by the Unusual Bad Weather In the Report Coming From Many of the States and Territories, Still There Is No Cause For Fearing a Famine.

WASHINGTON, May 10.—The weather bureau has issued a bulletin of the progress of the crops for the week ending Tuesday, May 9, of which the following is a synopsis:

New England—Season cold and backward; frost not all out of the ground in the north.

New York—All crops good, although delayed; grass excellent; no seeding; little plowing in north section.

New Jersey—Excessive rains and deficiency of temperature and sunshine have practically stopped all growth and farmwork; tender seeds are rotting in the ground.

Pennsylvania — Ground thoroughly soaked; no corn planted; over one-half oat crop, and potatoes yet to be sown; winter grain and grass in fair condition.

Maryland—Fruit in some sections reported injured by heavy rains, high winds and frosts; wheat, rye, oats and grass improved; potatoes and tobacco plants thriving.

Mississippi—Conditions generally not favorable; crops becoming grassy; creek bottoms overflowed; some replanting necessary.

Louisiana—Crops show improvement but are becoming grassy; some complaints of lice in cotton and worms injuring corn; sunshine needed.

Texas—Favorable for cotton and corn; cotton planting delayed by continued dry weather in west portion; early wheat being harvested.

Arkansas—Wheat, oats, grasses and fruit doing well; cotton and corn injured by excessive rains and low temperature; much replanting necessary.

Kentucky—Corn not all planted; crop in ground coming up poorly; tobacco slightly injured; wheat, rye, oats and grasses fine.

Missouri—Crops advancing slowly; fruit prospects improved.

Illinois — Conditions beneficial to wheat, but retard other crops; fruit prospects improving, plowing and corn planting making fair progress; thousands of acres of wheat still submerged, and will probably be a total loss, season about 10 days behind.

Indiana—Crops on uplands look well, lowlands yet inundated; fruit backward, not much injured.

West Virginia—Wheat, oats, grass, rye and tobacco growing finely, promising reports relative to fruit, stock in good condition.

Ohio—Wheat, oats, grass rye, barley and tobacco made slow growth; early potatoes rotting; fruit promising; strawberries blooming.

Michigan—Crop conditions continue backward owing to wet and cold; plowing for corn is in progress in most southern counties; fruit prospects excellent.

Wisconsin—Seeding will be finished this week and corn planting begun, season very late, no damage, except slight rotting of seed.

Minnesota—Seeding general, grass and early sown grain doing nicely; lowlands in central and northern districts still too wet; fruit trees budding, some corn planted.

Iowa—Large acreage ready for corn; planting begun in southern districts.

North Dakota—Wheat showing up in many localities; average temperature and very little rain.

California—Grain crops short; cherries, prunes, almonds and berries average; peaches two-thirds and apricots one-third crop; hope improving rapidly; sugar beets in San Bernardino, Orange and Monterey counties good; bean planting in Santa Barbara and Ventura counties rapidly advancing.

POLITICAL EVENT.

Meeting of the National League of Republican Clubs.

LOUISVILLE, May 10.—The largest convention of the National League of Republican Clubs that has ever been held since the birth of the organization is in session here.

When the convention assembled the Democratic mayor of the Falls City bid them thrice welcome and told them that they were welcome to the best and choicest of Kentucky hospitality.

Many states that failed of representation last year and the year before responded to the roll call Thursday morning with good sized delegations. The event is also notable for the large attendance of men that for years have been prominent in the councils of the older heads of the party. The presence of such men as J. Sloan Fassett of New York, J. H. Manley of Maine, the trusted friend of the late idol of the Republican party; Powell Clayton of Arkansas, R. C. Kerens of St. Louis, Governor Nelson of Minnesota, M. H. DeYoung of San Francisco, John Gowdy of Indiana, J. K. Dubose of Idaho, John M. Thurston of Nebraska, and others of the leading lights of the party testifies to the interest that is manifested in the movement toward enthusing new life and energy into the junior brigade.

At the same time many of those whose presence have been confidently relied upon have found it impossible, from one cause or another, to put in an appearance. Among these are ex-President Harrison, ex-Vice President Morton, Governor McKinley, Thomas B. Reed, Senator Spooner and Henry Cabot Lodge. The suggestion, however, that their absence is occasioned by any lukewarmness, or the belief that it is yet too early to commence to lay plans for future Republican success, is emphatically repudiated by General Clarkson and his colleagues. They say that each and every absence is accounted for on the score of prior political or business engagements, and that each of the absentees has written an expression of his warmest interest in the future of the league.

It is not among the probabilities that the convention will either directly or indirectly suggest that a reconstruction of the Republican party should be a necessary result of the defeat of last November, or that it will advocate the enunciation of any new doctrines.

The silverites from the far west who are anxious to place the convention on record as favoring free coinage as a party issue, may be permitted an opportunity of presenting their case, but the convention will have none of any other outside "ism."

Plans will be submitted for broadening and extending the work of the league preparatory first to the congressional elections for next year, and, second, to the next presidential campaign, likewise regarding the ways and means of securing the necessary sinews of war, and a strong committee will be appointed to carry these plans into effect. "Be up and doing" is to be the watchword, and both the leaders and the rank and file agree that from now on the political bonfires must be lighted on every hill and the work of proselytism and organization must be carried on throughout the country with vigor and energy as though the national election was a thing of the immediate future instead of the recent past.

The meeting of the National Republican committee divides interest with that of the league. Concerning this gathering there is an air of mystery. None of the members on the ground, from Chairman Thomas H. Carter down, will admit that they know just what they are likely to do beyond the fact that they will review the political situation as it affects the Republican party, excepting regarding the causes of last year's defeat, and possibly embody their conclusions in an address to the country.

Headquarters have been opened at a local hotel by Mrs. J. Ellen Foster of Iowa as the solitary delegate of the Woman's Republican league. As she can not hold a convention all by herself she proposes to assert her right to be seated as a member of the league convention proper.

The name of General Alger as a candidate for the league presidency was sprung and received with some favor by the delegates as yet unpledged. W. W. Tracy of Illinois has gained considerable, but a big delegation of Buckeyes are whooping things up for President Spares of the Ohio State league, and claim a majority of the convention in advance. President Burke of the College league appears to be having everything his own way in his canvass for the secretaryship.

The National Republican committee has indorsed by resolution the action of its executive committee in New York on the 15th of last July, making Thomas H. Carter, chairman of the campaign committee. This resolution was bitterly opposed by De Young of California, Clayton of Arkansas and Kerens of Missouri. This commits the committee to the recognition of Carter as chairman for the remainder of the term.

BATTLE WITH HUNGARIANS.

One Man Killed and Several Others Dangerously Wounded.

PITTSBURG, May 10.—Const. Jacob Schale, accompanied by Deputy South, went to Shanty No. 18, South Side, Irwin, to arrest a number of Hungarians, who were charged with the larceny of some beer.

Upon their arrival they found the house barricaded but forced their way in, and were met by a volley of bullets from the Huns, one of which struck Constable Schale in the arm, while a woman dashed a skillet full of hot grease into the face of Officer South scalding him terribly.

Not being armed, they returned to Irwin, where they deputized a posse and returned. This time they found the Hungarians upstairs with drawn revolvers. The officers started upstairs only to be met by another volley of bullets. They were prepared this time, and returned the fire, and for a while the bullets flew as thick as hail but the Hungarians finally surrendered.

When the smoke of battle had cleared away it was found that three of the foreigners were wounded, one of them, John Ilko, fatally. He lived only a short time. His wife was shot in the arm and Joseph Pamah in the hand. All of them, seven in number, were arrested and taken to the Greensburg jail.

Mrs. Ilko, as soon as her husband died, deserted him and left for Braddock, leaving his dead body in the house.

"I have just returned from Europe," said Howard Hoffman, "where I have sojourned ever since my return from Zanzibar six months ago. I have been pursuing a course of investigation in the British museum that I had hoped would throw some light on the recent discoveries that have been made in Africa. Not far into the interior of Africa from Zanzibar I in company with others recently discovered traces of a prehistoric city of no small dimensions. This city that I speak of must have been a capital of some ancient province or kingdom. It was some five miles square and was surrounded by a wall of masonry, the foundations, with a few projections, of which still remain and indicate an excellent knowledge of masonry. The wall was undoubtedly meant for protection against enemies, for it was strongly built and must have been at least 20 feet high. It is now overgrown by great tropical vines, and parts of it extend through impenetrable morasses.

"Inside a few remains of houses still exist, and the outlines of a great temple or palace on the highest ground within the inclosure. Some excavations have been made and a few relics brought to light, such as pottery of the Egyptian type and broken bits of welded copper that may have come from a suit of mail. Some kind of symmetry must have obtained in that distant period, for the houses were built along streets or winding lanes, the precursor of our modern thoroughfares. The whole is overgrown at present by a mass of tropical plants and great old trees that have been standing for hundreds of years. To what nation these people belonged cannot be told, but the ruins would indicate that East Africa's shores were the seat of a great civilization and a great commerce."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Did Life Begin at the Poles?

As a matter of fact this earth of ours has long passed its youth. It is now verging on old age, and with its poles covered by everlasting ice it may be likened to a body whose extremities are bleached and paralyzed with years. Even in the geological period which immediately preceded our own, and which is known as the postpliocene, or quaternary, great changes took place, and man has been a witness to them. The rivers of today are mere brooks compared to what they were then, and in North America we can trace the shore lines of immense quaternary lakes which no longer exist.

But while this fact may interest and perhaps surprise us a little it does not tax our credulity so much as when we are told that once instead of snow and ice a luxuriant vegetation flourished not far from the poles. Indeed the French naturalist Buffon believed that on our planet, which was slowly cooled and consolidated, life began at the poles, and that from thence it spread in the direction of the tropics, whereat first the heat was too intense to admit of any kind of life. But it is only within recent years that we have been able to get a glimpse of the ancient arctic zone, which is much more accessible than the antarctic, and what has thus far been brought to light makes Buffon's daring conjecture appear not so very improbable.—Catholic World.

An Illustration by Beecher.

A man who had been a warm friend of Henry Ward Beecher tells this:

"Almost the last time I saw Mr. Beecher," he said, "I was with him in company with a group of men, one of which was Colonel Ingersoll. The colonel was airing some of his well known religious opinions, but Mr. Beecher for some time took no notice of the half challenge of his remarks.

"He sat silent, with his head bowed. Finally, in a pause after an especially daring assertion from the colonel, he spoke slowly:

"'On my way here,' he said, 'at the corner of Fulton street and Broadway, where the press of vehicles is close and dangerous, a man, a cripple, was trying to cross the street. A stout crutch supported him, and he was making progress when a fellow ran out and knocked his crutch from under him, leaving him helpless against the dangers bearing down on every side.

"'That cripple, sir,' he went on, suddenly raising his voice and throwing back his leonine head, 'is humanity; his crutch is Christianity, and you are the one who would push it away, offering nothing in its stead.'"—New York Times.

Reform Club Deserves Credit.

The beneficiaries of the robber tariff will bring their heaviest guns to bear upon the Reform club's tariff bill to produce differences of opinion among the Democrats. The fact remains, however, that it can but be of the greatest value to have started the discussion thus early, and the Reform club deserves great credit for its timely undertaking.—New York Staats Zeitung.

A NAVY OFFICER FROM THE SANDWICH ISLANDS TALKS.

King Kamehameha III and His Dislike of an American Lieutenant—Cultivating the Good Nature of the Hawaiian People—Yarns About Other Kings.

An officer of the navy who recently returned from a cruise of the Pacific squadron, and who spent many months cruising among the Sandwich Islands, related an interesting story in connection with the convivial habits of some of the monarchs of that kingdom. He says that the navy department, at the request of the state department, has been specific in its instructions since the civil war that commanding officers and other officers of the navy should as far as possible cultivate the most friendly acquaintance with the Hawaiian people. He went on to say:

"There was a time when it was apparent that the people of those islands had not any desire to have friendly intercourse with American navy officers. That was when Lieutenant (later Rear Admiral) William Reynolds was naval storekeeper at Honolulu in 1857 and stayed there two or three years. He had a manner that made him many friends and also many enemies, and King Kamehameha III was especially offensive toward the lieutenant. The king sought every opportunity to show his dislike of Lieutenant Reynolds.

"At that time the latter was on the 'reserved list' of the navy, and the king concluded that he was not obliged to show him the same amount of courtesy that would be due to him if he were on the active list. But in 1861 Lieutenant Reynolds was, upon his own application, put back on the active list, and after the close of the war, in 1866, he was sent to Honolulu in command of the sloop-of-war Lackawanna.

"The Lackawanna remained in Honolulu harbor for more than a year, and her long stay there excited the distrust of King Kamehameha, and he employed a person called on the Lackawanna to do a shrewd piece of detective work—to secure copies of the dispatches of Captain Reynolds to the navy department at Washington. The person employed for this clandestine work was enamored of one of the Hawaiian women of noble birth and considerable wealth, and Bill Ragsdale, a Kanaka and one of the smartest politicians in the kingdom and a man of great power and influence in the royal family, encouraged the lover in his desire to marry the young woman and promised him ultimate success if he should secure copies of the confidential correspondence between Captain Reynolds and the navy department.

"The correspondence was secured and given to Ragsdale, who then informed upon the young man who had played false to his commander, and instead of marrying the girl he was court martialed and sentenced to imprisonment on the notorious Dry Tortugas. Ragsdale afterward had to be sent to the island of Molokai, where all lepers are exiled and where he died a few years ago.

"The Lackawanna was succeeded by the sloop-of-war Mohongo, of which the late Rear Admiral Edward Simpson was commander, and the latter, by his diplomatic tact and keen judgment, soon won King Kamehameha over, and the officers of the Mohongo became very popular at court and received every attention and courtesy during the dozen months that the vessel was in Honolulu harbor. King Kamehameha was succeeded on the Hawaiian throne by his brother Lunalilo, popularly known as Whiskers Billy, because of his fondness for his beard, which was of luxurious growth. Lunalilo also had a fondness for that which would inebriate, but as there was a no license law—that is, so far as selling liquor to a native Hawaiian was concerned—he made it a practice to visit friendly warships to satisfy his appetite.

"Lunalilo lived only a short time. Kalakaua took Lunalilo's place on the throne, and he was a fair successor and succeeded pretty well in sustaining the reputation of his predecessor as an anti-prohibitionist. He also was fond of a good game of poker, and when simply Prince David he engaged in many an interesting game. Billy Emerson, the negro minstrel, had as one of his 'gags' on the stage in San Francisco that he once sat in a poker game with five kings. 'How's that?' said the middleman. 'Why, I held four and Dave was the other,' said Billy. This was a game in which it is said the minstrel held Kalakaua for a 'pat' amounting to $2,500.

"In 1874 Kalakaua visited this country, coming to San Francisco on the war vessel Benicia. Upon the arrival of the vessel at San Francisco, Lieutenant Commander W. H. Whiting, recently on duty at the navy yard, and who has been ordered to command the Alliance, now at Honolulu, was detailed to take charge of the royal party and escort it to San Francisco. A good round sum was provided for its entertainment by the state department and the king and his party had a right royal time.

"You will no doubt recall the joke which the officers have had on Lieutenant William S. Cowles, who is now naval attache at the London legation, ever since the visit of the Queen Dowager Kapiolani to this country a few years ago. He had command of the junketing boat Dispatch when the queen was taken on a trip down the Potomac, and in his address of welcome on board he paid this extravagant eulogy to her, 'Most noble and beautiful queen, I ask your majesty's gracious permission to address you.' Inasmuch as Queen Kapiolani was the color of chocolate, the other officers who heard it thought it a little strong, but then the speech was entirely impromptu."—New York Tribune.

The Fatal Secret.

She was 37 and some months, if she was a day, yet she sought to conceal the fact.

"Gracious me," she twittered, "how time flies, and how we fly with it! Just think: I was born in 1870."

The man looked at her, stupefied.

"B. C.?" he inquired, absentmindedly.—Godey's.

It is not at all surprising that Paderewski became hysterical. He was surrounded by so many distracted women he must have felt that he was in the female ward of an immense insane asylum.

Complaints of extortion at the World's Fair are not confined to the item of food. The latest grievance is the roller chair tariff, six dollars a day being the rental, while the renter is also required to leave a $4 deposit. At this rate none but high rollers will be able to take a roll in these vehicles.

Dispatches from Rio Grand do Sul, make clear the fact that a desperate battle was fought in Brazil on Saturday last between the Government troops and the insurgents; but as to the result of the conflict the reports are diametrically opposed to each other. If the Government version be correct the insurrection has received its death blow.

If the Campania, the new Cunarder, should cut down the time between England and America to five days, it would be possible to start on Monday in the Old World and bring up in Chicago on Saturday. It is sufficiently suggestive of the strength of the revolutionary movement in Nicaragua that President Sacasa, whose arbitrary course had provoked it, has been deserted by the garrison of two towns and has massed his entire force for the defense of the capital. The struggle may prove a prolonged one; but by the latest accounts the tide of fortue was running strongly in favor of the insurgents, and the Provisional Government of to-day may be installed permanently before the summer shall have ended.

Even the "free sugar" with which our friends, the McKinleyites are so fond of sweetning their tariff arguments is a fraud. The Trust, it is true, gets free raw sugar, but the Trust is protected by a duty on refined sugar, and with rigorous exactitude it collects that duty, and something more from all consumers. The Trust exacts $20,000,000 of sugar tax yearly from consumers, who, besides, are made to contribute $10,000,000 per year to pay bounties to the sugar producers of this country. This is "free sugar" with a vengence. The less said about it by the friends of Protection the better.

When Mr. Blair, of New Hampshire, was a member of the United States Senate he made a speech on the educational bill which lasted for six days and he was rather proud of the feat, but he has been laid on the shelf as a long distance talker by Mr. J. Carter, of New York, whose argument in favor of the claims of this government in the Behring Sea was not completed in two weeks, and what is more when he had finished, the president of the court of arbitration complimented him. Mr. Blair, however, spoke to empty chairs in the Senate, and the members of that august body did not hesitate to declare that he was the dullest and windiest bore of the age.

The faithful and unterrified of the Republican fold have already gathered at Louisville for the National League Convention which is to be held in that city to-day. No house top proclamation is needed to make plain the fact that this convention will prove to be the first movement of what remains of the Grand Old Party to pull itself together for the Presidential campaign of 1896. Some droll, and likewise some very sly, political pulling has already been indulged in in this process of rehabilitation; and there will doubtless be plenty of the comedy of practical politics for those who shall read between the lines while conning the story of the proceedings of this political "aggregation."

The attention of those Republican papers which declared that a Democratic victory would close all the factories of the State is respectfully called to our news columns. ### WHO MADE THE BILL?

Men Who Have Devoted Their Time and Money to the Cause of Reform.

The committee appointed by the New York Reform club to draft a proposed tariff bill consists of E. Ellery Anderson, Hon. Charles S. Fairchild, Thomas G. Shearman, Professor David A. Wells, Hon. John DeWitt Warner, Everett P. Wheeler and Jacob Schoenhof.

Mr. Anderson, the chairman, is an ex-president of and big contributor to the Reform club. Mr. Fairchild was secretary of the treasury during Cleveland's first administration and is now president of the Reform club. Mr. Shearman has for a third of a century been one of the most successful of customs attorneys in New York. He was Beecher's attorney during the famous Beecher-Tilton trial. He is eminent as a lawyer, statistician and philanthropist. Professor Wells has written more valuable books and pamphlets on the tariff question than any other American. His "Recent Economic Changes" is regarded as one of the two or three great books of this generation. Congressman Warner is widely known as a writer and speaker on tariff and financial questions. He is the author of many of the Reform club's most telling pamphlets, and more than any other man has been the backbone of the Reform club since its origin in 1887. Mr. Wheeler is well known as a lawyer, writer and speaker on economic questions. He is also an ex-president of the Reform club. Mr. Schoenhof was consul to Tunstal, England, under Cleveland and is the author of several works on the tariff and wage question.

It would be difficult to get together seven men better qualified to frame a tariff bill than these gentlemen. They are all successful business men; all have studied the needs of the people for many years; from their intimacy with different industries they know about what reductions are necessary and safe; they owe nothing politically to any protected manufacturers and are in league with no clique of officeholders or spoilsmen; they have demonstrated their unselfishness and devotion to principle by giving their money, time and thought to the tariff and other reforms; they have no ax to grind in proposing a new tariff bill and do so only to educate the people, keep the Democratic party in line and see that the promises made to the people are carried out in good faith.

But little impression can be made upon such a committee by calling its members "theorists," "cranks," "hobby riders" or "imbeciles," and yet protectionists are compelled to put up some kind of opposition to a bill that would actually stop the greater part of the tariff robbery. Their case is certainly desperate.

Shoddy Wolf In Sheep's Clothing.

It is quite certain that free wool and low duties on woolens would seriously injure if it would not be the death of the shoddy industry in this country. This fact is being made clearer every day.

Mr. F. Muhlhauser of Cleveland, the proprietor of the largest shoddy mill in the world, replies, in The Wool Reporter of April 6, to a letter in a previous number from a "certain Mr. Osborne of Wyoming, who claims that 'protection made wool cheaper.'"

Mr. Muhlhauser not only gives the "certain Mr. Osborne" a fearful drubbing, but laughs at the Reform club and the members of congress who are attempting to revise the tariff downward. He says "this whole question will turn out the greatest farce of the nineteenth century."

Now, it so happens that the "certain Mr. Osborne" is not only the governor of Wyoming, but is a large woolgrower, who favors free wool to provide better markets for American wools. It is presumed that Mr. Osborne understands his business as Mr. Muhlhauser understands his shoddy business. There is a conflict of interests. Mr. Muhlhauser wants the importation of foreign wools prevented so that our manufacturers will be compelled, in order to give their cloths a soft finish, to mix shoddy instead of foreign wools with our own wools. Mr. Muhlhauser does not dare to give his exact reasons for favoring high duties on wools. He knows it would injure his cause, just as the circular letter of the shoddy and rag men in 1888, declaring for high duties and for Harrison and Morton, undoubtedly opened the eyes of many woolgrowers, though not in time to turn them against protection until the elections of 1890 and 1892. Mr. Muhlhauser, therefore, takes pains to make his plea in the interest of woolgrowers—a sort of shoddy wolf masquerading in sheep's clothing.

Take off your wool mask, Mr. Muhlhauser, and let the people see your shoddy suit. If they then prefer your industry to the wool and woolen industries and clear shoddy suits to cheap all wool suits, they will stand by you and your bogus wool business; if not, they may give the real wool business a show. Real sheep are suspicious of you, and thousands have already broken out of the Republican fold because you are there.

Democratic and Novel.

This method of drafting a tariff bill is entirely novel of late years, but it is thoroughly Democratic. Hitherto it has been the custom for manufacturers, the direct beneficiaries of protectionism, to pool their interests and then make demands upon a Republican congress, which promptly yielded to them. The great mass of the people were not consulted in such matters. The best feature of this new undertaking of the Reform club is that it will serve to direct the attention of the industrial world to the fact that reductions of the tariff will be made within less than 18 months.—Albany Argus.

The Women Du Maurier Draws.

We should feel as if Du Maurier had been fickle and faithless if he were suddenly to cease to offer us the tall, tranquil persons he understands so well. They have an inestimable look of repose, a kind of Greek serenity. There is a figure in a cut of which we have forgotten the "point" and the date (we mention it at hazard—it was one in a hundred), which only needed to be modeled in clay to be a truly "important" creation. A couple of children address themselves to a youthful aunt, who leans her hand upon a toilet table, presenting her back, clothed in a loose gown, not gathered in at the waist, to the spectator. Her charming pose, the way her head slowly turns, the beautiful folds of her robe, make her look more like a statuette in a museum than like a figure in Punch. We have forgotten what the children are saying, but we remember her charming attitude, which is a capital example of the love of beauty for beauty's sake. It is the same bias as the characteristic of the poet.—Henry James

MOJAVE FUNERAL RITES.

Grief and Appetite Go Hand In Hand at These Ceremonies.

On the banks of the lower Colorado, among the gravel mesas and mesquite covered valleys, live the Mohave Indians, having their commercial headquarters at The Needles, Cal., famed as the hottest place in the United States excepting Death valley, and their seat of learning, supported by the government at Fort Mohave, A. T. In western Arizona, where snow and ice are unknown, clothing is useless except for ornament, and the mesquite tree bears all the food needed to sustain life, we find the Mohave Indians to resemble in appearance and habits the negroes of central Africa except in the particulars of curly hair and thick lips, having the same scorn for the restraints of clothing, and the same passionate fondness for brilliant plumage and gaudy cosmetics. Peculiar are the customs of these benighted people, but there is none more unique than the ceremony connected with their disposal of their dead.

An Indian woman died at noon, and we attended the funeral, four of us. The Mohaves practice cremation, and the cremating commences as soon as the breath is out of the body, as witness the fact that the woman died at noon and was on the funeral pile at 15 minutes past. Indeed it is said that the mourners are sometimes startled at seeing the dead come to life again when the fire begins to grow fervent. Not many hicos, as the white people are called, are accorded the privilege of attending these ceremonies, but as we stand well with one of the wise men of the tribe we were invited to be present. As soon as we could swallow our dinners we started for the place and were guided there by the wailings of the friends of the departed, consisting of every man, woman and child present at the festivities. You can see the reasonableness of my calling it by such a name when you are told that the affair concludes by the killing and eating of all the horses of the departed, and every one goes to his own hut feeling that he has enjoyed himself greatly.

The Mohaves believe in demonstrating their feelings through the agency of the mouth and limbs, and this woman being much beloved the mourners were many, and their grief could be heard a mile away. If ever you have heard a pack of coyotes howling forth their misery in the middle of the night, when they howl most artistically, you have this noise to a dot.

Arriving at that place we found a hole dug in the ground about 10 feet in diameter and 2 feet deep, heaped full of wood and surmounted by the body of the deceased. This was burning, and around it in picturesque attitudes were all the friends trying to outdo each other in exclamations of grief. The head doctor, for the Mohaves have physicians, stood by the side of the genius who stirred the fire, giving directions for the most rapid destruction of the body, which he had, no doubt, with great skill assisted in becoming a corpse. He thus carried his functions a step further than the physicians in civilized life.

One old fellow, who seemed to be the minister, was standing within the circle haranguing the assembly doubtless on the many virtues of the departed, and when he seemed to make an unusually good point the mourners manifested their appreciation by an increase in the force of their groans.

Finally the relatives and friends ate the horses that were the property of the deceased and went home firmly believing that the dead woman's spirit is roaming untroubled in "Ghost mountain," just across the river.—San Francisco Chronicle.

THE PRINCE IS DEAD.

A room in the palace is shut. The king
And the queen are sitting in black.
All day weeping servants will run and bring,
But the heart of the queen will lack
All things, and the eyes of the king will swim
With tears which must not be shed,
But will make all the air float dark and dim,
As he looks at each gold and silver toy,
And thinks how it gladdened the royal boy,
And dumbly writhes while the courtiers read
How all the nations his sorrow heed.
The prince is dead.

The hut has a door, but the hinge is weak,
And today the wind blows it back;
There are two sitting there who do not speak;
They have begged a few rags of black;
They are hard at work, though their eyes are wet
With tears that must not be shed;
They dare not look where the cradle is set;
They hate the sunbeam which plays on the floor,
But will make the baby laugh out no more;
They feel as if they were turning to stone;
They wish the neighbors would leave them alone.
The prince is dead.

JUDGE CEPHAS.

Happening soon after the close of the war to ride along the road past "Old Pop Castle," I observed a large and excited concourse of colored people standing under the famous oak at that place. Upon approaching and making inquiry I learned that Uncle Cephas—now Squire Bolden—who, along with some others of his race, had recently been appointed magistrate, was about to hold his first court.

Elbowing my way through the dense crowd till I reached and mounted one of the gnarled roots of the oak, I was enabled to overlook the sea of heads and survey the court. On the safest corner of a very unsteady shuck frame was perched the presiding magistrate, his ebony forehead, which bowed back without limit over his bald pate, covered with an appropriate frown. The rest of the frame held the six jurymen, who leaned against or sat upon it according to each one's confidence in its stability. The prisoner, a vagabondish but harmless looking man, on whose crow black face fright was imprinted in an ashy cast, was wrapped up in ropes and placed in the middle of the shuck frame for safe keeping.

I had scarcely gained my position and taken in the surroundings when the court opened.

"Do court am now adjurned en will perceed to bizness," cried Uncle Cephas in a loud voice as he removed his hat and dropped it on the ground. "Let whomsomdever gwi' pussyente dis pussun hyere in de shuck frame now speak up er 'never hole his peace!" he continued with solemnity.

A young mulatto, the smartness of whose dress culminated in a highly glazed paper collar, slowly arose from one of the oak roots, cleared his throat in the most approved legal fashion and announced that he had been engaged to conduct the prosecution.

"Well den, shoot, Luke, er give up de gun," exclaimed the court after the counsel had wasted a good while fumbling through his pockets in a perfunctory manner.

"Mister Magistrate en genermen ob de jury," began the prosecutor after this warning, "you am dissembled tergedder hyere dis fairty day under dis blue sky en dese green leabes to deform one er de highes' juties er freemuns en feller citizens."

"De genterumns better not take quite sich er big chip, en chop er 'll' closeter to de line," put in the court.

"You am dissembled tergedder," continued the counsel, in no wise abashed, "hyere fo see dat er pussun dat needs jestice wus'n anybody in de snorbeer my whole intelligence gi's hit, en gits er plenny ob it, heaped up, shoken down, squashed in en runnin ober. En ef—ef de law didn' inquire dat some confusions must perceed out'n de monf er de pussycuter, ev'y word dat would be necessary would be, 'Hyere's Nickydemus en dat's de lim' er grapevine,'" pointing to a stout grapevine which lay on the frame near the magistrate. "Ev'body knows he's done broke ev'y law dat been made since dey fust started to makin laws, sides all sights en stacks un un dat neber al' been made. He's broke um straight way, en broke um sideways, en broke em crossways, en broke um sleperdicler, en broke um puppendicler, uppendicler, downendicler, en roun'endicler twel he's nately wo' um out to er frazzle.

"But es de law do inquire some confusions to perceed fum de monf er de pussycuttin lyyer, I will perceed. Fustly, who is dat in de shukk frame? Nickydemus Wagstaff! What is he excused ob? Ev'ything in Gol Ermighty's worl 'cep'n one theng, en dat is doin right. Eben de biggis' liar 'twixt Roanoke en Tar river never excused him er doin dat.

"Who'll come to yer house en holler tull he'll make yer walk two miles from yer work en meibe wade de crick, en den des want to borry 5 cents? Who c'n gin er thousin reasons why yer mus' len him er dollar, en den turn roun en gin ten thousan w'y he ca' pay it? Who c'n make de biggis' promus en de littles' performence in de Nunited States? Who c'n outargyfy Daniel Webster hisself when he wants to git holt er yer thengs, en den outargyfy him ergin when yer tries to brek dat holt?

"Who is de lazis', lyinist, catinis', outlandishis', worryinis' nigger awn dis side ob de river? Who aggyvates en 'sturbs de neighborhood till dey don' know dar heels from dar head? Ergin I axes yer who owes ev'body in twelb miles er dis place er furder ef he ranges furder? Who c'n looks into yer min en tell fer minnite how lawng it takes yer furgit dat las 25 cents he borrid, en den step right up en borry er nudder one? Nickydemus! En now who ken be spar'd do bes en missed de less? Nickydemus!"

The magistrate, who for some time had been extremely busy trimming the knots from the grapevine with his pocketknife and twisting it into suppleness, now paused and delivered the following charge:

"Gentlemuns ob de jury, you's hyeard ernough to hang er whole cuppen (cowpen) full er niggers. En all I'se got to say is dat pull'n Fodder Time patnigh hyere en dis is er mighty good chance to git ridder Nickydemus."

"Gentlemuns ob de jury, is yer egreed?" demanded Squire Bolden.

"We am, sah," came in dignified tones from the frame.

"What is de wordick?" solemnly demanded Uncle Cephas.

"De wordick, sah, am it nebber won' do to lot slip dis chance er gittin ridder Nickydemus," was the reply.

"Stan up, pris'ner," was the supertinous order of the magistrate to the condemned, who had been standing up from the first. "You's done plenny harm in dis worl' fer one nigger; en 'sides you's had er fa'r trial 'fo' yer feller citizens. Now, it's de jedgment er dis court dat yer be hung to de biggis' lim' awn Pop Castle oak widder grapevine, caze 'twud be bad luck to use er rope after it been 'bout dead folks, en dat de jury is debbytized to do de hangin."

"Hold on!" I shouted, thoroughly aroused by the groans of the prisoner and the screams of his wife and children. "Do you know that you are about to deprive a human being of life against law and justice? Why, not even a witness has appeared against him. Mind what you do!"

"De genterman in sto' cloze," replied the magistrate sternly, "will please don't bodder de excusulonments er dis hyere court. Do chac'ter er Nickydemus Wagstaff is knowed fer as de train goes, ef not er li'l furder. De whole yearth en ev'ytheng in it b'rs witness ergin him. Genterumns, do yer juty."

While I was struggling desperately to force my way through the throng and reach the spot, the ropes were stripped from the prisoner, a slip noose in the grapevine thrown around his neck, and he was dragged away to the designated spot. One end of the vine weighted with a small stone was thrown over a huge limb. The jury seized it as it fell and pulled with might and main. The doomed man rose, wildly kicking and struggling against the background of blue sky. He was already several feet in the air when a hitch occurred. The jury gave a jerk. With a snap the grapevine broke, piling them in a heap on the ground. In an instant Nicodemus was making for the woods, descending the hill 20 feet at a bound, with half the grapevine standing out straight behind him, and the whole crowd, Uncle Cephas in the van, in headlong pursuit.

Before 100 yards were covered it was clear that Pop Castle would witness no hanging that day, and in half an hour the breathless, baffled crowd was back again seeking what consolation the cool spring water could afford.

Whether it was an accidental break in the grapevine or whether the shrewd old man while trimming and "scooplin" gave it a nick it was impossible to say, although there was plainly a twinkle in Uncle Ceph's eye when his gaze met mine on his return from the chase.—David Dodge in Kate Field's Washington.

BAD ECZEMA ON BABY

Head one Solid Sore. Itching Awful. Had to Tie His Hands to Cradle. Cured by Cuticura.

Our little boy broke out on his head with a bad form of eczema, when he was four months old. We tried three doctors, but they did not help him. We then used your three CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using them eleven weeks exactly according to directions, he began to steadily improve, and after the use of them for seven months his head was entirely well. When we began using them his head was a solid sore from the crown to his eyebrows. It was also all over his face, and on different parts of his body. There were several weeks that we had to keep his hands tied to the cradle and hold them when he was taken up; and had to keep mittens tied on his hands to keep his finger nails out of the sores, as he would scratch if he could in any way get his hands loose. We know your CUTICURA REMEDIES cured him. We feel safe in recommending them to others.

HONEST METHODS AND LOW PRICES MADE US WHAT WE ARE.

A SCORCHER!

IF YOU SEE IT IN OUR AD. YOU KNOW IT'S TRUE.

Will be the grand bargains that are to be had this week at THE MAMMOTH STORE. Consistent with our progress as the greatest store in Northwestern Ohio, we could not resist the temptation to buy one-third more goods for this season's trade than ever before, pinning our faith on an early spring and preparing for an enormous demand, but with a cold, backward spring against us we are overloaded so heavily that something must smash. Commencing to-day we are going to smash prices to splinters, no matter how the weather will be, rain or sunshine, business we must have and shall have it, if prices and quality will do it—we want to make this week a memorial week in the history of the clothing trade of Northwestern Ohio. Read every word in this advertisement—we live up to our Motto:

A Dairyman's Opinion.

There is nothing I have ever used for muscular rheumatism that gives me as much relief as Chamberlain's Pain Balm does. I have been using it for about two years—four bottles in all—as occasion required, and always keep a bottle of it in my home. I believe I know a good thing when I get hold of it, and Pain Balm is the best liniment I have ever met with. W. B. Denny, dairyman, New Lexington, Ohio. 50 cent bottles for sale by Melville, the druggist, next to post office.

The result was immediate relief, and a few doses cured him completely. It is made for bowel complaint and nothing else. It never fails. For sale by Melville, the druggist, next to post office.

SWEETHEART, FORBEAR!

"Sweetheart, forbear!" Time said I to my dear,
She, with rebellious grace,
The light of wayward fancy on her face,
And some half smile, half tear;
"Nay, silence is not peace;
'Twere better far than this wholly to cease
If I should know no more
The rapture of revolt, the joyous strife,
The free, unfettered air I breathed before."

So we long time assailed with hot debate,
And knelling voice and word,
Deep problems, which a myriad souls have striven—
Fore knowledge, freedom, fate,
Till, wearied out at last,
Hand clasped in hand, without a word we twain,
Gazing at a moonrise on the silvered main,
Knew a strange calm enfold our doubt with sleep,
And all the stress and conflict stilled and past.
—Lewis Morris in Black and White.

STEAMBOAT FRANK.

"What place was that?" asked a tall, aristocratic planter, as the steamer pulled away from the landing into the dusky river.

"Kerr's Landing," said the man beneath the black slouch hat, who had just stepped aboard. "Good place to leave; nothing but swamps."

"How far to Davis' plantation?"

"'Bout three hours. Another durned swamp. Stop there?"

"Yes. Got a plantation back from the river a piece. Swamp is right through. Three hours, eh?"

"Yes. Didn't suppose there was land enough along there to plant one."

"Oh, it is all right when you get to it. Going to be dark, ain't it?"

"Should say so. Got a good pilot, though.

"First rate. Do you play?"

"Sometimes, if the game's good. Who's in it?"

"Nobody much. Drummers and such like. Oh, Wheeler of Richmond. Know him?"

"No; who is he?"

"Not much; cotton edge, Sflegme."

"All right; I'm in. That spray's little wet, ain't it?"

"Rather; let's go inside."

"What's the limit."

"Two hundred. Have a cigar?"

"Yes, thanks. Here we are."

"Any room here, gents? Whew! it's cloudy."

"Yes, lots of room. Hello, colonel; come in," says a voice from the smoke. "Bring out the drinks, nigger. I say, colonel, what you are going to have?"

"Little whisky—rye."

"Rye whisky there, nigger. Hold on, there—I want another card. All right. Don't your friend take a hand?"

"Don't know, you'd better ask him."

"I'll take the ... stranger," from beneath the ...

"All right. How do they run, colonel?"

"Fair. I'm holding. Haven't been up for some time. What's the news?"

"Nothing much. Quiet about N. I. ..., wasn't it?"

"Yes. How did that happen?"

"Well, they are several stories going around. ... they put up a job to do Steamboat Frank, and he got the best of them. C... colonel, ... don't?"

"Yes."

"You, stranger?"

"Yes."

"All right. ... decided thank each of that ... Steamboat ..."

"Smoked ... "

"Yes, ... right. ... any do you want? How ... Frank ... did they do it? Who was the other ... here?"

"Don't know. Some ... from Texas, I think.

"I ... Spanish ... the table.

"I'll ... to ... you ... Know anything about it, Wheeler?"

"Oh, ... enough. Here's what I hear. They got to playing a pretty stiff game, and Frank took all the money. They were hard losers and tough men generally. They accused him of cheating and started the row, and he simply wiped them out."

And they were ... the ... in ... that he has wiped out ... rather."

"No, you are right. It all the reports are correct, he is a pretty low-cast back there, but they do say that know him that he's as square as a die and wouldn't kill a chicken without he had to, but when some one comes along and takes him for a mud flat or sand bar the way things pile around that locality is a caution to Christmas bells in a great city."

And then he branched out into several amusing anecdotes regarding him, of his heavy games and ugly scrapes; of his cool nerve and ready wit; how upon one occasion a Texas ranchman had, by his loud and braggadocio manner, contrived to offend the more quiet tastes of Steamboat Frank, had been kicked over the taffrail of a boat with a cocked revolver uncomfortably near his nose, and after being towed for a mile or two was at last hauled aboard again and contained less starch and more gentleness of manner.

"But there is one fellow who has got in on Frank, who don't allow any time for fooling. He is a big New Orleans gambler called Blazer."

"Blazer. You don't tell me," said the colonel. "I know him; hard let, they say."

"Yes, you're right, and they say he is the man who has driven Frank from the river."

"What, Blazer? How is that?" asked the colonel.

"Well, you see it is a long story. There was, as is usual, a woman in it. She sort of liked Frank best, I suppose. Can't blame her much, after seeing Blazer, eh? Face like a Chinese funeral, only more so. Frank must be a corker if he looks worse than she does. Well, anyhow, Frank got the girl, and Blazer has been trying to down him ever since. Frank had asked him to come out and settle it two or three times, but Blazer's peculiar gift doesn't seem to be in that direction. He has some other way better. You see, he has a strong pull down at the Crescent, and Frank's case don't have time to settle down as any other man would. The fellows Frank settled were great friends of Blazer's, and I heard a rumor that the whole thing was a job cooked up to do Frank, but don't know as there is anything in it. If there was a job, it failed in its object anyhow. Your deal, stranger. Bad for Frank, though, just the same."

This pleasantly amused the time flew by unnoticed, until presently the whole party were aroused to the consciousness that the quiet man at the far corner of the table, whose face was concealed beneath the brim of his hat, was winning all the money in the crowd.

"You are playing great luck," remarked the colonel.

"Yes, easy money. First I've seen lately."

The party became slightly nettled, and the colonel proposed extending the limit. They all agreed, and the stranger still kept on at his old gait.

"I'm done," said one of them presently as he threw down his hand.

The stranger was still playing in the same easy, half careless manner, his bets being made without any apparent thought, while the others were more deliberate and played with the greatest caution.

"I think we had better let out a few more laps in this limit," said the colonel as he warmed to the music.

"Suppose we cut loose altogether," suggested the Spaniard in a tone of feigned calmness, although his eyes blazed with excitement. Some of them assented, the rest dropped out and watched the battle.

"Who's in this time?" asked the stranger as he began to deal. "All right, here you go. What's up, gents?"

"Five hundred," said the colonel as he threw a note in the center of the table.

"I'll have to raise you 500, colonel," said the stranger as it came to him.

"One thousand above you," said the colonel.

"Fifteen hundred," shouted the Spaniard as he threw down the stuff. The rest here dropped out.

"Two thousand better, my friend," said the stranger.

They raised him again, and things were growing interesting when the stranger quietly mentioned 10,000, and taking up a rubber purse that had been lying upon the table counted out the money.

"I'm done," said the colonel, throwing down his hand.

"I, too," echoed the Spaniard in a dejected manner.

"Ah, well, so it goes," said the stranger, as he reached for the pot, throwing down his hand, containing only a pair of jacks.

"Well, I be —," said the Spaniard.

"Me, too," said the colonel.

Suddenly there was a loud knock at the door, and a rough voice shouted "Open up!" Every one started in surprise except the stranger, who was busy stuffing the money into his rubber wallet.

"What do you want?" asked some one as he opened the door.

Three burly forms pushed hurriedly in, but all stopped simultaneously when their eyes fell upon the stranger, who was standing quietly with two big revolvers trained upon them.

"Good evening, gents. Your peremptory entrance seems to be a little rude. Suppose you drop your guns."

The clatter of several heavy articles was heard upon the floor.

"You might put up your hands—sorry to trouble you."

Six hands were at once seen in the neighborhood of the ceiling.

"Lucky the game was done; ha, colonel? These officers are always troublesome. 'Bout face, there, you fellows; keep your hands up if you don't want to know how it feels to get hurt. Forward, march! Look out for the stairs; that's good. Right dress (as the men stood by the rail upon the boiler deck). Now, then—one, two, jump!"

A heavy splash immediately followed his words. The boat was just rounding the bend and not more than 20 yards from shore.

"Bon voyage," said he, sticking the revolvers in his pocket.

"Captain, land me at the nearest woodyard on the other side."

"All right," said he, making a signal to the pilot. Immediately the faint, faraway jingle of bells was heard, and the boat turned her nose toward the opposite bank.

"Good night, gents," he called to the crowd hovering around the rails as the gangplank was slammed into place. "I always did prefer the most of landing."

"Who wasn't," asked the Spanish accent, as the boat swung out into her course again.

"Steamboat Frank," said the captain.

"I thought so," muttered the colonel.—Philadelphia Press.

Cardinal Newman at Dinner.

On an occasion when Cardinal Newman was dining at a friend's house, a noble lord among the guests, wishing to draw him out with respect to the upshot of political contests in the Roman state, said, "Things are sadly disturbed just now in Italy, Dr. Newman." Staring into space in an apparently vacant manner, he replied, "Yes, and in China." Not one present said a word more on the subject.—San Francisco Argonaut.

DRANK AMMONIA.

Engineer McNeill Asked for a Hot Drink and Got it.

Engineer McNeill, of the L. E. & W., went into Jno. Seiferd's saloon and asked for a dose of bitters. Mrs. Seiferd was alone in the place and made a mistake and gave him ammonia. McNeill drank it. His throat and stomach were badly burned by the stuff, and he was a very sick man for awhile.

He is better today, but is unable to eat anything, on account of the raw condition of his mouth and throat.

A Typographical Error.

In yesterday's issue of THE TIMES-DEMOCRAT, a typographical error was made, in that the year of purchase was made to read 1889, where it should have been 1887. The corrected notice is appended

The people of Northwestern Ohio are looking for that batch of news you promised to have in Monday evening's TIMES. Now still more people will think you are a bag of wind. But we agree with you in thinking that you had better keep still. You stated April 28th that "not over two years ago Mrs. Bogart purchased a Fischer Piano," one week later you said three years ago, and Mrs. Bogart herself said in our office in the presence of five persons that it was almost six years ago—bought July 30, 1887. Too bad that your memory serves you so poorly better learn the truth, then you won't contradict yourself so terribly and people will have a little confidence in you. Mrs. Bogart came to our store, saying something about a statement to be corrected, but she could find nothing to correct. She was then asked what was wrong with her Fischer piano, and said "nothing, but it won't stay in tune." When asked who had tuned the piano, she stated that Mr. Lehman (Porter's tuner) had tuned it. This explains the whole trouble with that much abused Fischer piano. We sold a piano about a year ago to Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Mathewson, who live 21 miles from Lima, and they will certify that Mr. Porter's tuner went there to tune the piano—what for?—can the reader guess, considering that we beat him in the sale of it. This is only one instance, we can mention more, but there is no need. Before you buy a piano or organ, call on

AWAKENED

By the Doomed Engineer's Call for Brakes.

Conductor Welsh and Brakeman Wickham, of This City, Narrowly Escape Death.

Conductor William Welsh and one of his brakeman, Jesse Wickham, both of this had a very narrow escape from being killed in the Big Four passenger wreck at Lafayette, Ind., last Saturday night, an account of which appeared in THE TIMES-DEMOCRAT.

The L. E. & W. caboose track is located at one end of the Big Four passenger depot at Lafayette, and Welsh's caboose, No. 68, was standing on the track, with Welsh and Wickham sleeping inside, when the wreck occurred. The latter heard the engineer on the ill-fated engine call for brakes, and realized, as every railroad man would, that when an engineer calls for brakes coming down a grade entering the city, something is going to happen.

HE CALLED TO WELSH

to get out of the car and both started, but before they reached the door the passenger engine struck the caboose, completely wrecking one end of it and covered it over with debris, while the two men were piled in a heap at the far end.

They tried to get out but the doors were filled with wreckage and had they gotten through the door they would have been badly scalded by the hot water and steam from the engine.

They were held prisoners for about thirty minutes and were released by the debris being torn away.

They are congratulating themselves upon their fortunate escape.

IMPROVEMENTS

To be Made in the L E. & W. Yards Here.

Within the next few weeks there will be quite a change made in the L. E. & W. yards on the South Side.

The south track, running from the east end of the coal dock west, now used as a coal track, will be used for the main track being better located than the one now in use. The curves are not so sharp. The greatest improvement will be a new building to be erected on the south side of the tracks directly opposite where the dispatchers' office now stands. It will be a two story structure, with the waiting room and yardmaster's office down stairs and the train dispatchers and Superintendent O. W. Bell's office in the upper story.

It is thought that the changes will be completed in a few weeks.

THE CHAIR FELL OVER.

Col. W. K Boone Sustains a Painful Injury This Morning.

This morning Col. Boone, of the Boone Hardware Company, was standing on the arm of a chair, replacing some books in a case at the store, when the chair overbalanced and fell. He came down with it, the weight of his body coming on his right arm, which was very severely sprained at the wrist.

The injury is very painful and will necessitate the carrying of the arm in a sling for several days. He was fortunate in escaping without a broken arm.

AMONG THE RAILROADS.

THE O. R. C.

The Order of Railway Conductors are convened at Toledo in their regular annual convention. Hundreds of the blue coated fraternity are in attendance, while a large concourse are present as spectators. There are members from Newfoundland to the City of Mexico. The order is not confined to the United States, but takes within its fraternal grasp every conductor of good standing on the western continent. The order has over 20,000 members in this country. In 1868 the first meeting was held in Columbus at the request of the conductors on the P. Ft. W. & C. This was the starting point of one of the most successful labor organizations now extant. Many of the conductors of the local road have requested a leave of absence for several days in order to attend the convention.

ENGINEER LENNON'S CASE

A special from Toledo says that Hon. Frank Hurd has succeeded in having the application for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Engineer Lennon, of the Lake Shore, who was fined $50 by Judge Ricks for refusing to take out a train composed in part of Ann Arbor cars, advanced in the Supreme Court of the United States. The case will therefore be heard at the October term. Otherwise it would not have been reached for two or three years. The question involved is one of such vital importance to labor unions that the United States Supreme Court granted the motion to advance without hesitancy.

JOHN WHELAN RESIGNS.

To-day John Whelan leaves the service of the C. H. & D. railroad company. He has been with the road for several years in the capacity of advertising man in the passenger department. He will associate himself with the Register, a paper published by the B. P. O. E. Mr. Whelan will be succeeded by E. W. Hoover, formerly with D. G. Edwards, of the O. & C. road. In leaving the railroad service Mr. Whelan takes with him the well wishes of all the boys.

NOTES.

Engine No. 107, of the L. E. & W., is in the round house here for slight repairs.

Boilermaker L. J. Cox, of the L. E. & W., was in Fostoria last night doing some work on switch engine No. 25 that is working in the yards there.

Frank Cleveland, an L. E. & W. brakeman returned yesterday from Ft. Wayne where he was victorious in a law suit. He went out on his run to-day.

New York City receives $140,000 annually from the New York Central, $120,000 from the Erie, $100,000 from the Pennsylvania, $72,000 from the Jersey Central and $45,000 from the Lackawanna railroad companies for dock privileges.

All the grand trunk lines are kicking on the new nineteen hour train which the New York Central is to put on May 21. They say it will ruin their first class business, and want the Central to even up by charging $30 between New York and Chicago.

The Monon will stir up its competitors by putting on tickets to go via Michigan City and the lake to Chicago, and returning all rail, meeting any rates the Lake Erie & Western may decide to make. Indications are for lively times between these two roads in the next thirty days. The regular lines take the position that the Lake Erie & Western is an intruder and has no right to establish a line, even at full rate.

Defeated by Delphos.

There was a crowd of about 1,000 people at the ball park yesterday to see Delphos defeat Lima by a score of ten to eleven.

The Lima battery was Busel and Blackman, while Delphos had Zeigler and Keun.

The Lima's lost the game in the fifth inning when Busell injured his arm and five runs went in.

Health Report.

The State Board of Health makes the following report of contagious diseases in the state for the week ending, May 5th: Diphtheria, 40 cases, 12 deaths; scarlet fever, 60 cases, 1 death; typhoid fever, 30 cases, 9 deaths, whooping cough, 21 cases; measles, 263 cases, 3 deaths.

ROUND ABOUT.

This weather is very favorable to fishing, and if it continues, to-morrow will see a large number of fishermen on their way to the reservoirs, armed with their tackle and an assortment of bait and snake bite.

From $20,000 to $25,000 is wanting from our city to secure the Minster branch of the Lake Erie and Western railway to our city. Surely with a population of at least 12,000 and with our vast business and industrial interests which demand this road, the amount ought to be speedily raised.—Piqua Dispatch

A gentleman who is here setting up some work for an Eastern firm said last night, that he had more difficulty in getting help here than any place he had ever been. Yesterday he offered two dollars a day for a helper, but could not get one at that prize.

* *

Findlay is exerting herself to throw off the death pall that is now and has hovered over her for the past six months. Today she admits that her gas supply is exhausted, and that to obviate this arrangements have been made with the management of the T. & O. C. Ry. for cheap coal. The local press is booming the new arrangement and fuel, and there is hope that some of the few manufacturing concerns left will be induced to stay, providing they can be made to believe that Indiana's gas has been like Findlay's—fleeting.

* *

Judging from the large number of persons who have been bitten by dogs within the past few days, it seems that is about time that war was being commenced against the canines. On a rough estimate, there are about eleven thousand curs too many in Lima.

The special train bearing the foreign naval officers to New York passed through the city at 9 o'clock last evening. It had seventy-eight passengers. The train consisted of two dining cars and six sleepers, all equipped with electric lights and other modern improvements. It left Chicago with class engine No. 48 but before Valparaiso was reached it became apparent that more power must be added if the electric lights were to be operated and the scheduled time maintained and at the latter city engine 166, which hauls the accommodation between Chicago and Valparaiso, was hooked on and the train came to Fort Wayne as a double header, just ten minutes late. At that point No. 279, a class N, built in the Fort Wayne shops, took the place of the two class O engines and put the train into Crestline exactly on time.

* *

When you see a woman going along the street with her chin well up and her gaze above that of her fellow mortals, don't think she is haughty or exclusive. She is merely practicing the proper walking pose, which directs that the chin must be raised above a horizontal line, as if looking at the top of a carriage.

* *

Bishop Leonard, after his good work here, confirmed a class at Findlay yesterday morning, and in the afternoon conducted the dedication exercises of a new church at that place.

* *

The attendance yesterday at the game of base ball between the Delphos and Lima clubs was such that it indicates that a club, economically conducted, would be liberally patronized, and would no doubt, pay. There is no reason why Lima cannot support a club as well as her sister towns.

* *

The weather the past few days has been very favorable to out door work of all kinds, and all improvements are going forward rapidly. The Ohio Southern contractors are hustling their work as fast as they can, to make up for the time lost by the heavy rains last week.

* *

The wires of the Fair Weather Line are in miserable condition all along the line, and to day they had a force of men at work repairing them. Their wires at the crossing in the square are in such shape as to make them dangerous.

* *

The forty-sixth semi annual meeting of the Northwestern Ohio Medical Association will be held in Kenton commencing tomorrow, and continuing until Friday evening. The sessions will be held in the Elks lodge rooms, corner of Detroit and Franklin streets. There will be quite a large attendance from this city.

FLOATER FOUND.

Sandusky River Turns Up Another Mystery.

The body of a man about six feet tall, about 50 years of age was found floating in the Sandusky river, near the L. E. & W. railway bridge, a short distance below Fremont, last evening about six o'clock. The body had been in the water so long that identification is almost impossible. The face is badly battered up. Several letters were found in the dead man's pockets addressed to Nelson Berendt, and lead to the belief that the body is that of Berendt who has been missing for over two years. Berendt was at one time a leading merchant tailor in Fremont, but through drink had lost his business.

Hit Him.

Last night, night clerk Fd Titus, of the Windsor, stepped into Hank O'Neill's saloon adjoining and asked the clerk to have those about the bar keep quiet as their noise was disturbing the guests. Hank took exceptions to the request and after some words hit Titus, blacking his eye. They had clinched when policeman Haller came up and separated them.

O'Neill was notified to appear before the Mayor but as yet has not done so.

FADS AND FANCIES.

Quaint Conceits for Women's Wear These Spring Days.

The Serpentine is the name given a manifestation of the house waist which retains its hold upon the affection of women in the most astonishing fashion. This especial corsage is made of wash silk, has a surplice effect with a turn-over collar in front, ending in two long ends which encircle the waist, and are knotted in the back in a stiff Louis XVI. bow.

The newest cuffs are really very pretty. They are worn outside the sleeves and are shown in lace, linen and kid. With outing gowns the kid cuffs are chosen to match a lace corselet and deep collar at the neck of the same material.

A simple and stylish traveling costume is of Harris tweed made with a Russian blouse, a flaring Empire skirt, very full sleeves and a belt embroidered in mohair braid. The same braid ornaments the foot of the skirt.

Kid belts are of many designs in the round and bodice shapes, and this promises to be a splendid season for them.

Pretty straw hats in pale violet are trimmed with gold lace, green velvet and a single pink rose.

Buckeye Pipe Line runs May 9, 41,-[illegible]

We learn that a gentleman from Lima has leased the A. T. Levering farm, a few miles west of this city, and that he is arranging to put drillers at work immediately to test the locality for natural gas. It is said that this well will be finished in the course of a few weeks when we will know more about the character of our gas field. Other parties have secured leases in this field—one from Pittsburg and a number from the northern part of the State. Evidently the interest in the Piqua field is increasing and the chances are that quite a number of wells will be drilled in this spring.—Piqua Dispatch.
